

Product review: WRMK The Works All-in-one tool

Today I want to tell you about the WRMK The Works All-in-one tool.

I am not affiliated with WRMK, nor is this a paid promotion in any way. I am merely writing this review as a very chuffed crafter who regrets not buying it years ago.

I have reached a point where I stopped making cards and journals and focused solely on making ephemera which did not have to be exact, as my previous cutting boards simply did not do a precise job. They were either just too blunt (no amount of cutting foil helped and they are just too old to get replacement blades). My second option of using utility knives or Stanley knives always left me with smaller tags, as I had to keep on trimming as the knife slipped on the ruler or something. I then saw this product on Amazon and spoke to a Crafter-friend who said she had it and truly love hers.

Needless to say, I invested the money and do not regret it for one minute.

This neat tool combines over a dozen must-have tools into one convenient design! Perfect for trimming, scoring, making banners, envelopes, tabs, tags, pom-poms, tassels, bows, and of course useful for stamping. It has a bone folder and all the other tools needed in this all-inclusive multitool. It can fold up to save space and it's lightweight so can easily be used to travel to retreats or even on holiday.

My only regret is, I should have bought this cutting board eons ago! A game-changer. Simply love it. A high-quality cutting board, with so many extras and truly an all-in-one tool!
